THE BATTLE FOR BUNKER HILL 10

Dedicated To:
U.S.A.F. Security Police
Past, Present & Future

"CSC, This is Bunker 10,
I think we've got Cong in the wire."

"Roger that, I'm sending a SAT,
Stay alert and hold your fire."

The S.P.s did as instructed,
Then a triplare popped to their right.

They fired a burst from their 60,
Which started one hell of a fight.

Red tracers streaked from the barrel,
As they searched for V.C. to smite.

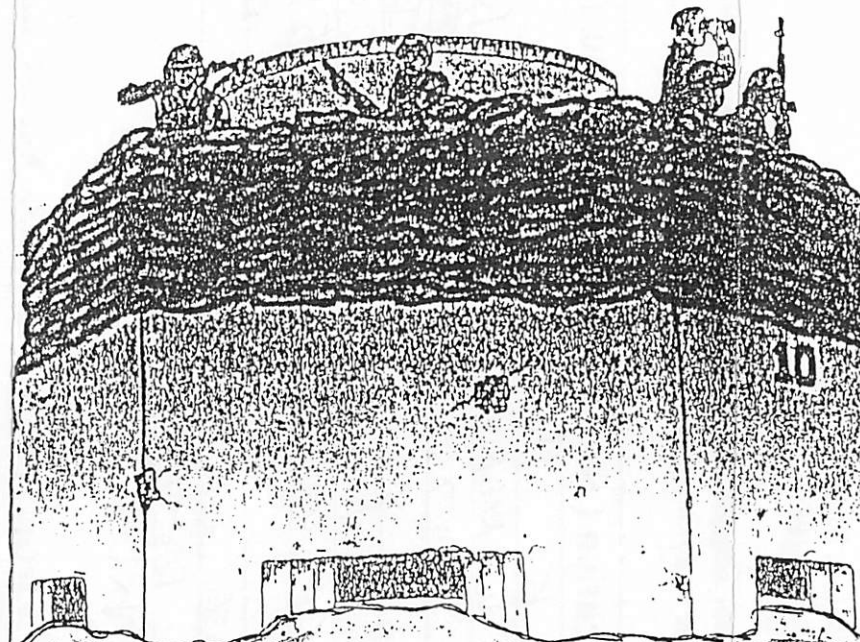

The V.C. poured through the wire,
And charged with all of their might.

Rockets exploded, weapons reloaded,
Stapflares soared high and bright.

The airmen fought on very bravely,
Then a round struck one and he fell.

And still, the sappers kept coming,
Into the jaws of hell.

They battled for more than an hour,
Now another S.P. lay dead.

A burst from an enemy weapon,
Had riddled his body with lead.

A truck soon pulled up to the bunker,
And a Staff Sargent hurried inside.

He smiled at his friends who were fighting,
Almost cried for his friends who had died.

Then he grabbed a 16 from a corner,
As the 60 machine-gun roared.

He fired along with his comrades,
As they fought off the oncoming horde.

They finally repulsed their attackers,
And by daybreak the V.C. had fled.

Leaving their weapons behind them,
As well as their wounded and dead.

The medics arrived at the bunker,
And departed with two dead young men.

But the brave, young S.P.s were undaunted
And stood ready should they come again.

In what is now known by Security Police,
As the Battle for Bunker Hill 10.
